Summary:

This discussion provides an overview of the CMS THA/TKA PRO-PM including its history, required patient-reported outcome instruments along with the full data specifications, and pre/post-operative data collection windows. Attendees will learn the reporting requirements, timelines, and payment implications under the Hospital IQR and coming down the pipeline OQR Programs. The presentation concludes with common challenges in collecting patient reported outcome data in the hospital setting and practical strategies for building a successful collection and submission process.

Objectives:

- Identify the history & key components of the CMS THA/TKA PRO-PM, including the required patient reported outcome instruments & collection timeframes.
- Describe the reporting requirements for hospitals under the Hospital Inpatient/Outpatient Quality Reporting (IQR/OQR) Program
- Recognize common challenges & basic strategies for collecting patient-reported outcome data in the hospital setting.

Speaker:

Eric Andersen is a physical therapist by training with a background in acute care and ICU settings. He transitioned into the patient-reported outcomes field over three years ago, driven by a passion for research-based, objective data as a means to improve care for large patient populations. He is a firm believer in value-based care and in making the patient's voice the guiding light of healthcare delivery in the United States. Eric lives in Minneapolis, MN, with his family, where they enjoy skiing, golfing, and staying active year-round.
